County supports Bell rate protest

Telephone subscribers in the Dorset area are upset with the service being provided by Bell Canada. They recently expressed their dissatisfaction in a resolution endorsed by the local council objecting to the rate increase applied for by the company. That resolution from the Sherborne, McClintock and Livingstone council received the backing of Haliburton County Council April 15.

According to area reeve Fred Baum, the community of Dorset is virtually cut off from surrounding communities. "When Bell Canada redrew the toll boundaries recently," he told the county council meeting, "the only place we could call for free was Dwight."

The reeve noted that the three townships and the community of Dorset are part of Haliburton County, but the telephones in township are not listed in the directory. "We can't call other places in Haliburton County," Baum told the meeting. "Not even to Hall's Lake, a community located a few miles south of Dorset on Highway 35.

Baum noted that residents of the community do a great deal of business in Huntsville. "Many of our residents rely on doctors in that community or use the hospital in Huntsville," he pointed out. He noted that the residents of the community of Baysville, a few miles to the west of Dorset on Highway 117, can call both Huntsville and Bracebridge without charge.

Baum said there were only 600 telephones within the free calling area around Dorset, a situation which isolates the community from the large centres surrounding it. He told the meeting that until the Bell improves the services to the area, his council will object to the request for any rate increase.

The action on the part of the township council received the endorsement of county council.

Bell responds

A spokesman for Bell Canada admitted that the telephone subscribers in the Dorset area had been promised a larger free calling area a number of years ago. However, John Vokes said that plans had to be set aside because of budget cuts.

Vokes questioned the number of phones which Reeve Baum claimed could be reached free of charge in the area. He said there were 480 phones in Dorset and 1245 in Dwight giving a total of 1725. He said this number of phones placed the Dorset subscribers in a less expensive rate group. For example, he noted that a residential phone in Dorset would cost $6 per month compared to $6.80 per month for a subscriber in Minden. Minden telephone subscribers are in rate group six, which gives access to up to 15,000 free phones.

Vokes said the decision to expand the Dorset calling area to include Huntsville depends on a number of factors including the telephone traffic between the two communities, agreement by more than half of the subscribers to the necessary rate increase and that the two centres are not more than 30 miles apart. The two centres are approximately 24 miles apart.

Vokes said the matter of expanding the calling area is being considered by officials at the Bell but he wouldn't be able to comment on what the decision would be. He said he expected an announcement on the matter in the next four weeks.

The first meeting of the Minden Business Improvement Area was held Tuesday night at the firehall with a light turnout of merchants. The board of directors, selected by township council to represent the business community, elected a chairman and vice chairman. Gord Monk will be heading the committee while Ron Wrightman was selected vice chairman. It is expected the board will meet during the next few weeks to hammer out a program for the core area of the village. Seen seated at the head table are, from the left, Stu Brandon, Jerry Pillsworth, township representative Councillor Ed Pergolas and Ron Wrightman.

Expropriation approved over lodge owner's protest

Over the protests of a lodge owner on Elephant Lake, the Haliburton County Council has endorsed a by-law to expropriate a portion of the man's property. The land being taken by the county will be used for road improvements, however, according to the owner, Dennis Weymouth of the Elephant Lake Lodge, the actions of the council could severely hurt his business.

The matter, which has been brewing for the past number of years and is further clouded by a lawsuit brought against the county by the lodge owner, came to a head at the April 15 meeting of the council. The members of the council were presented with a report made following an expropriation board hearing which stated the county was within its rights to claim the land.

Weymouth, who sought and was given permission to address the council prior to the passing of the by-law, told the meeting that improving the road would spell the end to his business and possibly one other on the shores of Elephant Lake. He told the councillors that the county road now separates the cottages he rents from the shore of the lake. This situation he pointed out, has caused a great deal of concern for vacationers, especially those with small children.

He noted that the road is used by heavy trucks travelling to and from Martin's Mill and that these vehicles have added to the danger and created dust, fumes and noise problems as well. He told the meeting that when he purchased the lodge the truck traffic was light, but it had increased dramatically in the past few years with the result that where once his business consisted of many repeat customers, now only a few return for a second year.

Weymouth suggested that the council consider a bypass around the area. He estimated that the cost of the by-pass would be approximately $800,000 while improvements to the existing road would cost $350,000. However, the lodge owner pointed out that the improvements would not bring the road up to MTC standards and would probably result in increased maintenance costs. He suggested the council would be "penny wise and pound foolish" to follow the improvement plan.

"You are dealing with more than expropriation here," the lodge owner told the councillors. "You'll be taking more than a small piece of my property, you could be taking an entire tourist operation."

County engineer Bill Obee told the meeting that his department had received many requests to improve that stretch of the roadway. He said that considering the increased cost of the suggested bypass it could be up to 10 years before the county could consider carrying out the work.

Suggestions that an underpass or bridge over the roadway be constructed for pedestrians were not ruled out completely, however, it was noted that such work would be very expensive to complete.

Obee told the meeting that the work carried out by the county would improve the current sight distance in the area, widen the travelled portion of the roadway and improve the road surface. He said that the improved conditions might have a tendency to encourage drivers to travel faster but that he was willing to have a speed limit of 60 kph posted in the area of the lodge.

It was also noted that some of the mill traffic is leaving the area by a private road north of Elephant Lake which reduces the traffic in front of the lodge. This road is apparently being improved and it could siphon more truck traffic in that direction in the future.

After a short break, the members of the council voted to accept the expropriation plan. None of the councillors opposed the move.

Many visitors-a busy weekend for police

The influx of visitors this past weekend brought with it an increase in the number of complaints received by local police. A number of the calls concerned damages done to property during the winter, while a number of other incidents were related to an uncaring attitude on the part of the people involved.

Police are currently investigating two separate complaints of malicious damage at cottages in the Kawagama Lake area.

Vandals also used three cars at Elstone Motors and one at Curry Motors in Haliburton village as targets.

Spinning tires on a vehicle were used to rip up the playing surface of the new Ingoldsby ball diamond sometime during the past week while at a cottage on the Drag River, lumber was used by campers for a fire.

Damage was also reported from cottage owners on East Moore Lake and Oxtongue Lake.

One of the most serious incidents involved the dropping of a beer bottle from the Head Lake bridge in Haliburton onto a passing motor boat below. The bottle broke on impact, but fortunately none of the family members in the boat was injured.

Police are also probing the damaging of an airplane and four automobiles parked at the Stanhope Airport hangars. The incidents were reported April 17. The aircraft is the property of Stanley Moore of R.R. 1 Haliburton and Derek Rolfe of Guilford Township.

Constable Mike Smith reported the damage was not too extensive but that an investigation is continuing into the incident.

Break-in

The Ontario Provincial Police identification unit from Peterborough has been called in to assist local officers in the investigation of a cottager break-in and theft on Long Lake in Dudley Township.

The intruders removed $3200 worth of property, according to a police estimate. Taken in the break-in was furniture, stereo equipment, appliances, tools and guns.

The cottage and missing property is owned by David W. Cowan of Toronto. The theft was reported April 15.

Constable Mike Maher is in charge of the investigation.

Truck taken

An alert Haliburton Village resident recognized the sound of his own truck being driven out of his drive way in the early morning hours of April 19. Jack Teatro of Highland Street immediately called the police and the vehicle was found an hour later on the Skyline Lookout Road. The vehicle was undamaged.

The incident occurred April 19 and is being investigated by Constable Wim Magee.

Three roll overs

Three separate accidents in which the vehicles rolled over

Clocks change Saturday

For those who have been bothered by the early arrival of the dawn's early light on their window sills, this weekend will bring a certain degree of relief.

This is the weekend when daylight saving time comes into effect and clocks are turned back. The change in time will mean it will be lighter later in the evening and the sun will not rise as early as it has been.

The clock change takes place Saturday evening. And for those uncertain which way to move the hands of time, the saying, "spring forward – fall back" is an easy reminder that the clock should be moved ahead one hour.

FROM THE CHAMBER

By Bob Stinson

Haliburton Highlands
the heart of cottaging counties

Everything is happening just a bit early this year. The frost is gone, the grass is green and spring clean-ups are way ahead of schedule around the county. Judging from the activity at the Chamber, many who traditionally made their first trip of the season on the May 24th week-end (which is also early - it's on the 16th) ventured north Easter week-end to open the cottage or just enjoy our spring fresh air. In fact it may be just about the busiest Easter week-end yet experienced here. Three cheers!

Many visitors are now dropping into the Chamber office to inquire about vacation facilities for this summer - and as usual we have a shortage of brochures on specific accommodations. All members are encouraged to display flyers and brochures in our Welcome Centre at no charge, so please take advantage of this.

Two meetings - similar problem

The Chamber hosted two important meetings over the past two weeks and the common concern at both get togethers was lack of funds.

The first event was the "Chamber Roast" and most complaints that were voiced by those in attendance boiled down to areas of activity that the Chamber board agreed we should be engaged in, but simply did not have the funds available to do a reasonable job. The second meeting was in conjunction with the Snowmobile Association who have the problem of increasing traffic on the trail system they have developed and maintained and a diminishing supply of funds with which to carry this out.

About 40 people attended both meetings and many of the same faces were seen on both evenings. Both meetings can be seen as constructive in that those participating showed a genuine interest in finding ways and means to solve the problems that were identified.

In the case of the roast, many members said they were prepared to carry a heavier financial load in order to give the Chamber, budget, to carry out a good promotional program and others suggested they would volunteer time towards various Chamber projects. At the snowmobile meeting it was decided that trail users be encouraged to help with the cost of trail grooming through the purchase of a "Booster" package which would sell for about $5.00 and contain, among other things, a good trail map.

Both of these ideas represent a sincere commitment on the part of those who attended, that they recognized the problem our respective organizations faced and they were prepared to help work towards a solution. It was encouraging in both instances to see such positive attitudes, and there is no doubt that if the rest of the business community feels as these people do, our problems can be overcome. That, however, is a very major "if". We should be able to assume that those who do not attend meetings are willing to go along with decisions made by those who do - that they have no particular opinion that they wished to voice, and will join in the commitments that were made.

Unfortunately, this is not always the case. Some eight years ago when the Chamber faced a financial dilemma because the government had withdrawn their $7,500 grant, it was a unanimous decision at a relatively well attended meeting that a 15% surcharge be levied on the members to offset the lost grant. Those at the meeting paid the increase willingly of course, but many who did not attend refused and the membership suddenly dropped from over 300 to 185. The 15% surcharge of course failed to solve the problem since the lost membership revenue more than offset the increase.

The Snowmobile Association will be introducing their "Booster" package. It will require business people throughout the county to take part and make an effort to sell these packages at no profit - for the benefit of better trails and tourism.

The Chamber will be developing, as a result of the Roast, programs that will require a similar degree of co-operation. We know we can count on those who were there - we urge those who were not, to support them just as enthusiastically.

If you don't understand the reasoning behind the decisions, please don't turn your back - contact us and provide us an opportunity to explain it to you. Let's all work together for a better economy.

Are you a member?
Is your neighbour?

One of the topics of conversation at the Chamber "Roast" was the number of contributing members versus the potential. Our current membership stands at about 300 businesses or individuals and the potential is estimated at about 450. This means for every two businessmen who are helping the Chamber work towards a better economy there is one who is not. It was suggested that those who are carrying the load should be upset with those who choose to ride free - and even more so now that the load may get much heavier.

Victim of own success - HCSA studies ways to boost income

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association has become a victim of its own success. The organization this past year has been hard pressed to maintain its network of snowmobile trails.

That was the message brought to a meeting Thursday evening by HCSA president Tom Prentice. He told the audience of close to 40 that trail usage had outstripped the ability of the club to properly maintain it. He noted that government funding had decreased over the past few years and that there was no indication that an increase could be expected in the next two.

"In that time use of the trails in the county has increased, with this past season seeing a big jump in riders," Prentice told the gathering. He noted that only eight percent of the snowmobilers on the trails are members of the association.

"Where trails should be groomed twice a week, we are lucky if we can get to them once a week," the president told the meeting. He noted that other trail systems in the immediate area had more equipment to groom fewer miles of trails than the Haliburton association had to work with.

The meeting had been called by the HCSA and the Haliburton County Chamber of Commerce, in an effort to obtain ideas from members and the public as to how the association could rememdy its financial problems. Prentice and members of the executive fielded a number of questions on the over-all operation of the association and its plans for expanding the trail system. In most cases the response indicated that a lack of funding was all that was holding the organization back from further trail work.

Prentice told the audience, many of whom were merchants or lodge operators who benefitted from the snowmobile activity, that a survey carried out by the HCSA last year indicated snowmobilers bring over $6 million into the county each season. He pointed out that this amount is growing each year as other areas of the province are closed to the public or day user fees send riders looking for free trails.

The meeting did discuss the idea of instituting a daily user fee for the county trails but it was rejected. Various speakers pointed out that collecting the fees would be a problem, could result in a boycott of the Haliburton system and could mean the loss of provincial support for the organization. It was suggested however, that members of the HCSA should urge others to join the association by pointing out that the county's trail system needs this financial input.

Other methods of funding were also considered including a levy on businesses benefitting from the snowmobile trade, getting the province to invest more of the money collected in licence fees in trail use or creating a trail "booster" package to sell to visiting snowmobilers.

This last idea caught the attention of most of those in attendance and the executive was requested to design a package that would include a trail map, decals, information about the area and a coupon entitling the person to a discount on a membership in the HCSA. The price of the package was set at $5.

It was pointed out that while the contents of the package may not represent $5 in value, the purpose was to encourage snowmobilers to support the trail building efforts of the association. The HCSA will be seeking the co-operation of retail merchants and lodge owners in the area to sell the package, but also to stress to the customer that in purchasing the item, he is also contributing to the operation of the county organization. The reverse side of the map will also include a list of the commercial members of the HCSA.

The executive of the association was also instructed to ensure the cost of the package did not exceed $1 which would ensure a net return of $4 to the HCSA with the sale of each package.

This booster package will replace the annual directory which has been published by the HCSA. The meeting was were reported by the police during the past week.

Elizabeth Turner, 64, of Minden, was the driver of a 1974 model car which overturned on the Scotch Line Road. The mishap occurred April 15. Neither Mrs. Turner nor her husband, Arthur, 67, were seriously injured in the accident. The automobile sustained $2500 damage.

Constable John Gray investigated.

A Scarborough driver lost control of his vehicle on Highway 503 in Snowdon Township, causing it to roll over. Austin Robert John Laws, 23, the driver of the car sustained minor injuries. His two passengers were unhurt.

Police estimate the damage to the car at $7000.

The accident is being investigated by Constable Brian Dunham.

As a Snowdon Township resident swerved to miss an animal on Highway 121 near the Allsaw Bridge, he lost control of his vehicle and it rolled into a ditch. The mishap resulted in $2000 damage to the car driven by 21 year old Kenneth McElwain. The driver and a passenger in the car, 20 year old Kevin Newell of Minden, suffered minor injuries. The accident took place April 18.

Constable Bob Wood investigated the accident.

HCSA objects to directive

The directors of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association have expressed concern over a directive from county council that a portion of the grant the organization receives be spent in the Monmouth area of the county. The HCSA expressed their concern in a letter read at the April 15 meeting of the council.

The letter, signed by HCSA president Tom Prentice, points out that the Paudash Trail Blazers, a snowmobile organization in the eastern portion of Haliburton, has been awarded a grant from the county for $500. The club president states that the council appears to be taking a biased approach in telling his organization that $500 of its $2000 grant should also be directed to that area. "This means that one township out of 23 receives $1000 of a total $2500 grant from the county," the letter states.

Prentice's letter said that he felt the directors were the best judges of where the funds should be spent, noting that 63% of the association's money comes from private donations. He also stressed that the HCSA grooms all trails in the county.

Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman took issue with that final statement. He said, "The HCSA should be put on notice that they should groom the trails in Monmouth Township. They don't do it now."

In a reply to the HCSA the county's reply points out that Monmouth snowmobilers have been the main boosters of recreational snowmobiling in the county but have not received the benefits of trail grooming from the association. It was pointed out that the county receives its funds from all municipalities and simply wants to ensure that all areas benefit when grants are handed out to organizations such as the HCSA.

Stanhope Reeve Jim Harrison told the councillors that the purpose of the directive was just to ensure all areas of the county received benefit from the grant and that some effort was made to tie the many trails of the county together.

HCSA

told that while the booklet had been earning money for the association, in many instances those who obtained one would simply tear the map out of the centre of the booklet and leave the remaining portion, with the advertising messages and application form for HCSA membership, behind.

Several representatives of the Paudash Trail Blazers, a snowmobile club from the eastern portion of the county, were also in attendance. They agreed that a co-operative venture between the two organizations might be feasible and that members of both executives would study ways of improving co-operation between the organizations.

Everyone's help needed

It may seem like an off time of the year to be discussing snowmobiling in the county, but that is just what 40 people who gathered at PineStone Inn did last week. They were concerned about the future of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association, its financial health, the maintenance of a well-groomed county-wide system of public trails second to none in the province and, on a wider scale, the future of winter tourism and recreation in the Haliburton Highlands.

The group, which included representatives of the HCSA executive, members of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, several members of the Paudash Trail Blazers from the eastern portion of the county, lodge and marina owners as well as the general public, identified a number of important areas for consideration.

The consensus of the evening appeared to be that the members of the HCSA and others who benefit from snowmobiling should be doing more to encourage others to support the organization. One point which was made painfully clear was that only a small number of those who use the trails maintained by the association actually contribute to their upkeep by purchasing an HCSA membership. The plan is to appeal to the good nature and sense of fair play of these individuals by offering a $5 trail "booster" package during the next season. The offer is a friendly way of soliciting donations.

Likewise, it has been suggested that current members of the HCSA use some gentle arm-twisting to convince trail users that purchasing a membership is one method of ensuring the continuation of the excellent trail system which now exists here.

We hope their plans work and the snowmobiling public which has ignored the association but taken advantage of the trail system will respond to the pleas. If they don't, and the HCSA is unable to find other sources of income, then it is highly likely a recreational asset which is just starting to have a positive impact on what is a slow time of the year, may be lost.

There are other sources to be tapped as well, but more than friendly persuasion will likely be needed to squeeze any more grant money out of the provincial government. The association will also have to tap other areas as well, including the businesses at the forefront of winter recreation.

There is little doubt the HCSA has a great deal of work ahead of it. If they succeed, the economic impact could be felt in all corners of the county. If they fail to reach their objective, development of a second recreational season could be set back years. They deserve your support.

Commentary from Ron Reid of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists.

Ontario has had an Endangered Species Act since 1971, to protect any species or its habitat which has been declared endangered. The problem has been persuading the Minister of Natural Resources to actually make use of the Act, by designating species under its protection.

Until 1981, only 13 species were designated, including such high-profile rarities as the bald eagle and peregrine falcon, and a single plant, the small white ladies' slipper. Now a second plant has been added, in the form of the smaller whorled pogonia, another member of the orchid family. First discovered in Ontario in 1977, this inconspicuous plant is still only known from a single site, with a total known Ontario population of two plants. Even in the rest of its range, the smaller whorled pogonia is extremely rare, with a known world population of only 150-175 plants in 14 sites.

Clearly this species can be classed as endangered but there are many others that should qualify that have not yet been added. A listing on "rare" plants of Ontario, for example, includes over 600 species. The State of Michigan, with less area than Ontario, has 91 species on its endangered list. Why, ten years after the passage of the Endangered Species Act, do we afford complete protection to only 14 species?

In large part, the answer must lie in the misplaced priorities of the Wildlife Branch of the Ministry of Natural Resources. From a total budget of $27 million annually, only $150,000 goes to non-game programs, including endangered species. The remainder goes largely to management for hunting and trapping. Two years ago, when the province's senior endangered species biologist left in frustration, he was not replaced. As a result, only one staff person works full-time on all of the designated and potential endangered species in the province.

Underlying this reluctance to deal seriously with endangered wildlife, in my opinion, are some unnamed fears. Perhaps some fear offending the traditional supporters in the hunting fraternity. Some senior bureaucrats fear that strong protective measures for endangered wildlife will get in the way of economic development. Or perhaps the real fear is that designation of more species will be seen as an admission of a failure to adequately manage our wildlife to prevent their decline. In any case, extinction is forever. We had better soon get over our fears and put some effort into saving those species in jeopardy.

Rent controls: a dicey issue

By W. Roger Worth

Rent controls are fast becoming a major issue in Canada and governments are having a great deal of difficulty dealing with the politically contentious problem.

The reason: a great number of Canadians believe landlords would dramatically raise rents if they were left to their own devices.

Naturally, politicians are particularly sensitive about an issue that affects so many voters.

That's one side of the coin.

The people who develop and invest in rental properties have an entirely different point of view. Many of them argue they are not receiving a fair return on their investments, particularly at a time when the payout on ordinary investments such as Canada Savings Bonds is 12% – 14% or more.

As a result of the low rate of return on property investment, together with high interest rates, construction of new apartment dwellings has slowed to a crawl in many areas of the country.

The evidence: apartment vacancy rates in many cities are extremely low, producing what is becoming a mad scramble for available housing.

In addition, many landlords are cutting back maintenance spending in efforts to remain solvent.

Already two jurisdictions in Canada have recognized the difficulty by scrapping the rent controls that were introduced in the 1970s in conjunction with wage and price controls. Other provinces are considering either dropping or phasing out rent controls over a period of time.

There is support for that position.

Members of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, for example, recently voted to drop controls. They apparently see the need to encourage construction of rental housing.

While apartment dwellers may complain about rising rents following decontrol, there is an even more important question involved.

Unless landlords receive a fair return on money invested in property, a lot of renters may eventually find there is simply no place to live.

Licence fee boosted 500%

It was a long time coming, and not totally unexpected, but auctioneers will be paying 500% more to ply their trade in Haliburton County.

The increase in auctioneer's licence fees was approved at the April 15 meeting of county council. The fee will be raised from $5 to $25. Members of the council, including Anson, Hindon and Minden Deputy Reeve Doug Pritchard, a part-time auctioneer, endorsed the boost.

County Clerk Win Lahay noted that the $5 fee had been set back in 1874 and hadn't been changed since then. "After 107 years I think we are within the inflation guidelines to raise the fee," she commented.

It was pointed out during the discussion that the 1874 by-law was a hand-written document.

The fine for holding an auction without first obtaining a county licence was also increased from $25 to $50.

Maureen Forrester performs Sunday

The Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts concert series comes to a spectacular close this weekend as Canadian contralto Maureen Forrester appears on stage at the high school. The concert is the last in a series of four sponsored by the Guild.

The Sunday evening performance will provide a fitting finale to the series as the world famous opera singer makes her appearance here.

The visit to Haliburton is one of 16 stops Miss Forrester is making in a southern Ontario tour sponsored by the Ontour Department of the Ontario Arts Council in co-operation with the touring office of the Canada Council.

Acclaimed by conductors, musicians and audiences around the world, Miss Forrester has become a musical ambassador for this country. She most recently travelled with Andrew Davis and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra through China where she was an immediate hit. In one memorable occasion, she won the hearts of an audience of 18,000 when, for an encore, she sang in Chinese.

Despite this international recognition, Miss Forrester can still find time to visit smaller communities, such as our own, in Canada. In the past she has completed tours in Saskatchewan, Atlantic Canada and northern Ontario. These visits speak highly of her sincere concern for her art in this country.

According to the Guild, tickets for Sunday evening's performance are sold out. However, last minute cancellation tickets may be available. Those interested should call 457-2330 for more information.

Council approves stylist shop

Lutterworth Township council has endorsed a request to have a hair stylist shop established in Lutterworth Pines. The endorsement came at the April 16 meeting of the council.

The proposal had been placed before the members last month by Pines' resident Bill Kulas on behalf of his wife Ginger. He requested permisssion to construct an addition to his home which would be used for cutting and styling hair. Ginger Kulas has worked for four years as a hair stylist in Toronto.

When the proposal was first made council expressed a number of concerns about the availability of parking in the area and the congestion that might be caused.

Bill Kulas appeared before the council April 16 with a petition signed by a large number of residents in the development endorsing the project.

The council's approval was given with the provision that the business comply with the regulations of the township's by-law governing the operation of home occupations.

Green Thumb corner

From asters to zinnias there is a whole new range of flowers available to the gardener this year. Many of the varieties offer unique qualities, and a large number have won prizes at various competitions. John Hughes, of the Soil and Crop Branch of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, offers the following review of this year's new flowers in this week's Green Thumb corner.

New flowers

Each year, plant breeders come up with new varieties of bedding plants for the home garden. These new varieties feature qualities such as improved disease resistance, new colors, different plant shapes and habits, improved hardiness, longer lasting or larger flowers or better adaptibility to environmental conditions.

One of the highlights of the new selections for 1981 include Milday, a mixture of dwarf asters featuring large 10 - 11 - centimetre (4 - 4 1/2 - inch) blooms. This variety blooms profusely on bushy, compact plants 25 to 30 cm (10 - 12 in.) high. This mixture is recommended for bedding and potting.

Another promising new selection is the Begonia Bertini hybrid, Cora. This 25 cm (10 in.) tuberous begonia variety features large, bright, orange-scarlet, single flowers. This variety does extremely well even in full sun providing the soil is rich.

Celosia plumosa, Apricot Brandy, won an All-America Bronze medal for 1981. It displays exquisite, apricot-orange blooms freely above bright-green foliage. Plants are uniform 35 to 45 cm (14 to 18 in.) in height, spreading to 50 cm (20 in.) across. This variety offers bright color for bedding plantings, and it is also an attractive cut flower.

Red Wizard, is a new addition to the series of compact, basal-branching coleus. It features bright-red leaf interior, shading to dark red with a chartreuse border.

The new geranium varieties are also recommended for 1981. The Orbit hybrids are uniformly early-maturing with a compact habit, large blooms, and good basal branching. These are available in salmon, scarlet, red and white. The Picasso hybrid is a new and unusual violet color with soft leaf zoning.

Home gardeners can also enjoy two new varieties of impatiens. The Blitz hybrid was named winner of the All-American Bronze medal for 1981 - the first impatiens to win in the 48-year history of the awards. It has the largest bloom of any of the other orange-scarlet varieties, and it is also earlier and more abundant in bloom. The other new impatiens, Novette White, presents a new color along with a rose/white star and violet in the popular Novette series.

In marigolds, watch for a new dwarf French Tiger Eyes. This unique flower form features a golden-orange crest with a single mahogany skirt. The profuse 5 cm (2 in.) blooms grow on 30 to 35 cm (12 to 14 in.) plants. Marigold triploid hybrids Roso and Baro feature golden-yellow and lemon-yellow blooms. Blooms are early, large and abundant over a long season.

An outstanding new pansy hybrid, Universal, is an extremely, early-blooming type that produces an abundance of good-sized blooms throughout the season. Plants are uniform, compact, and tolerate cool and warm temperatures well. This series offers a full color range (11 shades) with plain and blotched faces.

Petunia Flamenco is a vibrant, rose-red variety that offers earlier flowering, more compact habit and deeper color than other petunias in this color range. A new color available in the popular Flash series is Salmon Flash. It is a bright, deep-salmon color with a lighter throat.

Ryco is a new salvia variety that features very vigorous, early and uniform plants. Its abundant, dark-green foliage contrasts well with the bright-red flower spikes. In tests, Ryco shows excellent garden performance. Its height is 30 cm (12 in.). There are also new additions to the Carabiniere series of salvia. Now the original Carabiniere Scarlet has color companions in orange, purple and white.

Home gardeners may also want to try Minaret, a new bedding snapdragon, semi-dwarf (30 cm or 12 in.) available in a wide range of colors.

These well-branched plants are free-flowering over a long season. A new verbena variety called Tropic was the Fleuroselect Bronze medal winner for 1981. The dwarf, ball-shaped plants feature large, bright currant-red blooms with no contrasting eye. If you need a new ground cover or container plant, try the new vinca variety Pink Carousel. Plants are 7 to 10 cm (3 to 4 in.) high, and spread to 60 cm (2 ft.).

A new zinnia variety for 1981 is the Pulcino mixture. The very impact blooms reach a mature height of 30 to 38 cm (12 to 15 in.). The double and semi-double blooms are available in sharp, distinct colours. This variety features long-lasting blooms that compete in quality with the higher priced hybrids.

Watch for these new varieties at your local garden centres and greenhouses this spring.

Canadian folk artist featured at Rail's End

The rays of the setting sun are touching a group of animals, visible through a picture window on the main street of Singhampton.

A carved sign on the front door reads " The Tompkins - Seton and Rhoda". Inside, a couple of senior citizens are filling their golden years with imaginative and productive creativity, which leaves no room for boredom and depression, the bane of so many retirees.

J. Seton Tompkins, 82, spent his early years on the family farm. The son of Irish and Scottish pioneers of the Presbyterian faith, his was a life of hard work and a few diversions. When the automotive industry was still in its infancy, Seton became a mechanic. At that time, there was no apprenticeship and no stock of spare parts. A man had to use his head and his hands in machine work and make the parts in his own shop. In 1921, Seton bought an old carriage shop and turned it into a garage.

For the next 46 years, the Tompkins served the public 16 hours a day, 7 days a week, at the work bench, at the gas pumps (hand-powered in the early days) and in a refreshment booth.

The garage was sold in 1967 and Seton found himself with time on his hands. A block of wood from a discarded telephone pole started him on his new career as a woodcarver.

A bear emerged from the pole under his skillful hands and was put in front of the house. That same day, a passing dealer saw it and snapped it up. This was all the encouragement Tompkins needed and from then on he continued to produce. His aim was and is to recreate the rural life of his youth. Horsedrawn carriages and sleighs, teams of oxen, domestic and wild animals, farmers and lumbermen all come to life under his carving tools. He pays loving attention to the smallest detail and paints his creations in bright colours. The familiar forms and colours gladden the hearts of the older generation which remembers and of the young ones who never knew.

Most of the works of art created by J. Seton Tompkins are in the collections of Dr. and Mrs. Price of Port Perry. A few pieces found their way into the National Gallery.

Rhoda Tompkins, wife and helpmate, keeps an album with pictures of all of her husband's carvings. She is a craftsperson in her own right, preferring to sew, quilt and work with leather. (Her father was a harness-maker.)

The Tompkins' main interests centre around their home. If you can't find happiness there, you can't find it anywhere, that is their conviction!

To this end, they remodelled an older house and added many conveniences. The "Sun Tan Van", a portable building, is Seton's brainchild. Its greenhouse windows allow the couple to capture the sun's warmth during the winter months and to get a tan without a trip to Florida!

J. Seton Tompkins is a happy man. There is a sparkle in his eyes and a smile on his lips. He finds pleasure in his work and his work gives pleasure in turn. It is a Canadian legacy which will endure.

The Rails' End Gallery in Haliburton is featuring the work of J. Seton Tompkins in a one-man show from April 14 to May 2.

In conjunction with the show, Dr. Ralph Price will lecture at the gallery on April 23 at 7:30 p.m. His topic - Canadian Folk Art, with special focus on the work of J. Seton Tompkins.

The preceeding was prepared for Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts by Leopoldina Dobrzensky.

Farm news & views

The Victoria Cattlemen's Association held their spring meeting in Lindsay last week. There was a good turn out of area beef producers to hear Jim Harkness and John Brubaker from Wellington County, discuss their concerns about our present beef marketing system, and outline some suggestions for change.

One of the most interesting comments they made was comparing the returns a farmer gets per pound, with the return a supermarket receives.

A farmer (or farmers) as the case may be, looks after a beef animal for between 2 1/2 and 3 years. That's the time span between when a beef cow is bred and the resultant calf is ready for market. At the end of that time, the farmer receives about 80 cents per pound for the finished animal.

The chain store purchases their beef from the packer, and within one week probably has it all sold to the consumer. The mark-up the chain stores in Ontario are charging today per pound of beef is about 85 cents. This mark-up figure has been established from monthly price research done by the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, in Toronto supermarkets.

So, for 2 1/2 to 3 years effort the beef farmer gets 80¢/lb. Mr. Harkness didn't feel that kind of difference in return was warranted or justified. He found a lot of support from Victoria Cattlemen on that point.

And he further pointed out that in 1977, only 4 years ago, the retail mark-up in the chain stores was only 25 to 30 cents per pound.

Jim Harkness suggested that if the chain stores were a little less greedy, the price of beef to the consumer could be reduced 30 to 50 cents per pound. This would encourage a greater demand for beef by consumers, and would help raise the price farmers are receiving.

Overall, it was an interesting meeting, with a variety of ideas regarding beef marketing being debated quite enthusiastically between the guest speakers and many local cattlemen.

Robinson named principal

A new principal has been appointed for the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Dale Robinson, the school's vice principal, has accepted the principalship of the school. His duties begin July 1 and will be for a three year term.

Robinson will be replacing Brian Mosgrove who tendered his resignation to the school board earlier this year so he could return to classroom teaching.

The board has also decided to eliminate the position of vice principal at the school and appoint two administrative assistants. These individuals will be chosen from the school's teaching staff and will have a reduced classroom schedule to compensate for the increased administrative responsibilities. The assistants will be appointed on a two year term basis.

SHOCK TALK

Tell children to play safely...away from hydro wires. Touching or coming close to hydro wires can be fatal.

If kites or model airplanes contact overhead lines, even touching the string or control wire can cause serious injury.

If a pet runs up a hydro pole, never climb after it. Wait for the animal to come down by itself.

Climbing hydro poles, fences around electrical equipment, or trees near power lines can be fatal. And remind children not to go near areas marked "Danger" or "Keep Out." Or, the fun could be over.
